TaWS Mission Statement

The purpose of the Tallahassee Watercolor Society [TaWS] is to promote the fine art of watercolor painting in Tallahassee and its surrounding communities in Florida, Alabama, and Georgia. We foster interaction among artists in the community and expose them to current exhibits, workshops, methods, materials and paint-outs.

Michael Ireland, Juror

“Painting, like most endeavors in life is a process. One more set of tools to master. One more discipline in which to learn to breathe.”

Michael Ireland

He’s come to understand the true art of watercolor for me is within the painting process itself. It is the brush washing the paper with color, the colors merging upon the texture of the paper, the combination of techniques and lessons learned from painting and then painting even more. And hopefully, upon completion of the art, a “work” of art is produced. But that is not necessarily the point. It is the painting process itself that is so important.

His paintings are consistent in traditional transparent watercolor technique...working to achieve the balance of light and shadow through a transparent glazing wash, allowing the white of the paper to delineate any and all white areas of the scene itself. It becomes a very disciplined painting style that simultaneously becomes a balance of both spontaneity and control.

Michael Ireland has participated in the creative process for over thirty-five years beginning with his studies at the American Academy of Art in Chicago. Under the direction of master instructor Irving Shapiro, he began to explore the effects of light and color through transparent watercolor. He soon developed a passion for the medium that continued throughout his life and career. Today Michael is a nationally recognized painter as well as an accomplished creative director and graphic designer.
